

SEWER COST TO TOTAL $71,000

Owing To Fierce Competition, Work Will Be Done 25 Per Cent Cheaper Than Heretofore.

PEOPLE'S CONSTRUCTION CO. WINS

Out In The Bidding For The Big Main Outlet Contract-- Ryan & Finley, Andrew Thompson, And Chicago Drainage Company Get The Rest.

Footings and tabulations of the figures submitted by the sewer contractors were completed in the office of the City Engineer today and the People's Construction Co. of Davenport, Ia., is the successful competitor for the contract of building the main sewer outlet, whether it be of plain concrete or Parley cement blocks. The offer of this concern, however, is conditional upon its being awarded the contracts in all the other districts and this proviso cannot be fulfilled as three other concerns have made good there. Nevertheless, it is believed that the Davenport concern will withdraw its condition and accept the contract. If it does not do so, George H. Kerschle of Madison will be the next in line. In order that the assessment may be equitably spread it has been found advisable in Janesville to call for propositions on the work by districts. Bidders are required to post large forfeits as pledges that they will fulfill their contracts. The larger contractors would absolutely refuse to enter the field were it not for the privilege of making their bids conditional, because there would always be the chance that they might be compelled to bring their equipment and crews here to work on a little job that would not be worth their time and trouble. For this reason it has been customary for some time past to permit them to "tie a string" to their propositions.

The People's Construction Co. offers to build the main sewer outlet, bulkhead, siphon, etc., of plain concrete for $15,975.00 and of Parley cement blocks for $16,732.50. The other bids on various portions of this work showed great divergences. On the bulkhead, for instance, the offers ranged from $100 to $1,102 and on the siphon, from $7,000 to $15,320. City Engineer Kerschle says that the successful bids will be about 25 per cent lower on all the work than could be obtained two years ago.

In District No. 4 Andrew Thompson of Racine submitted the lowest bid for the work in District No. 4. He offered to lay the piping sewer there for $6,302.10. The People's Construction Co., however, made the lowest offer there for cement block construction, its figures being $6,525.37.

Ryan & Finley Bids In the other districts only bids on piping were called for. Contractors Ryan & Finley of this city were lowest in Districts 15, 11, 6, 5, and 3, and their bids were respectively as follows: $1,511.20; $1,213.36; $3,250; $509.76; $1,778.77. The Chicago Drainage Construction Co. made the lowest offers in Districts 14 and 12, the same being as follows: $5,181.21 and $205.

Uncle Sam--That's just why I cannot stand for the Democratic party.

M'CARREN'S APPEAL IN APPELLATE COURT

Case Regarding Appointment of Election Inspectors in Supreme Court.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, July 27.--The justices of the appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn began a special sitting today to pass upon an appeal by the McCarran democratic organization from the decision of Justice Kelly in the matter of the appointment of election inspectors.

While the case has particularly to do with the democratic factional fight in Kings county, the decision of the court will be more far-reaching, as it will settle the question of whether the state convention of a political party has the power to set aside the recorded results of primary elections.

The Murphy-Connors combination, which ruled the state convention, unseated the McCarran delegates from ten Kings county districts, although the board of elections had certified to their election. When the board of elections, because of the convention's actions, refused to accept a list of inspectors to serve in the coming primary and general elections submitted by the McCarran faction, Senator McCarran applied to Justice Kelly for a writ of mandamus directing the board to accept his list. In denying the motion, Justice Kelly held that under the law the state convention was the judge of regularity.

PEACE CONGRESS IS NOW ON IN LONDON

Is Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the International Peace Congress.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, July 27.--Advocates of the adoption of the principles of peace and arbitration throughout the world have assembled in London from many quarters of the globe to take part in the proceedings of the seventeenth annual meeting of the International Peace Congress, which has its formal opening in Grafton hall tomorrow morning. For several months plans have been in progress to make the congress more notable, if possible, than any that has been held in the past. The American Peace society has sent a large and distinguished delegation to the congress.

There are many prominent delegates here from the continental countries and many of these were present today at a preliminary conference of those who desire to promote peace on the ground of Christian teaching. The continental societies are composed mainly of those who advocate peace on a spiritual and humanitarian grounds.

The general subject of discussion at the conference today was "Christianity and International Peace; the Practical Work of the Churches." The bishop of Hereford occupied the chair at the morning session and one of the speakers was Dr. Francis H. Riley of Boston.

MUCH INTEREST IN MOTOR BOAT TRIALS

Preliminary Trials Take Place Today and Tomorrow for International Race.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, July 27.--Motor boat enthusiasts throughout the country will follow with the keenest interest the results of the trial races for the selection of defenders for the British international trophy. The trials take place today and tomorrow in Long Island Sound, off Huntington, L. I.

There are also entries in all, and the Motor Boat Club of America can select three to defend the cup against a like number of foreign craft, there being, however, but two challengers in sight at present.

The cup, which represents the motor boat speed supremacy of the world, was captured last year by the Dixie in the international regatta at Southampton. It is now up to the Motor Boat Club of America to defend the trophy. The international races for the trophy are scheduled to take place next Saturday in Huntington bay.

MEET TO NOMINATE THEIR CANDIDATE

Independence League National Convention Called to Order Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, July 27.--With a substantial representation from nearly all parts of the United States, the Independence party, the successor of Hearst's Independence league, assembled in national convention in Orchestra hall today for the purpose of adopting a platform and nominating candidates for president and vice-president. The initial session was given over to the opening addresses of the temporary chairman and others, followed by the appointment of the usual committees. The convention probably will complete its work tomorrow.

Present indications are that the convention will neither endorse the candidacy of William J. Bryan nor force William H. Hearst to accept the presidential nomination of the Independence party. Thomas L. Hagan of Massachusetts is the man most prominently mentioned for the head of the ticket. Mr. Hagan ran for governor of Massachusetts two years ago on the Independence league ticket and polled a surprisingly large vote. He is a man of wealth and for a number of years he has competed successfully against the Standard Oil company for the oil business of New England.

The convention will be called to order at eight o'clock this evening by William Randolph Hearst, the temporary chairman. Charles R. Walsh of Iowa is to be permanent chairman. Milton H. Howard of Fort Payne, Alabama, is a leading candidate for the presidential nomination.

CHINESE BOYCOTT REACHES AMERICA

California Chinese Refuse to Ship to Orient by Japanese Line.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Seattle, Wash., July 27.--The far-reaching effect of the Chinese boycott against everything Japanese was evidenced here today with the sailing of the steamer Shawmut, carrying a cargo of goods to the Orient, consisting for the most part of shipments made by local Chinese firms. Under ordinary conditions practically all of these shipments would have gone on the steamer Iyo, which sailed more than a week ago, but the determination of the Chinese to boycott the Japanese line caused the Iyo to sail without a single Chinese passenger and with practically no consignments of freight from the Chinese merchants.

MILWAUKEE MAN WAS NAMED PRESIDENT

Is Chosen Head of the Catholic Societies of the State at Annual Session.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., July 27.--Frank Van De Camp of Milwaukee was elected president of the State Federation of Catholic Societies. Leo Kennedy of Burlington was elected secretary and John Scheidel of Menasha was elected treasurer. Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee was made spiritual director and the other directors of the organization are Judge Meskoos of Appleton, Dr. Emory Grandin of Milwaukee, and H. J. Werner of Kenosha. One hundred and forty-eight delegates attended the meeting which came to a close at noon today. Resolutions were adopted declaring against socialism and declaring that the federation is not a political organization and refusing to endorse political parties or their individual candidates.

SECOND CAVALRY IS ON PRACTICE MARCH

Fletcher of Rhode Island.

Chieftain, on the strength of what the railroads and local committees are preparing to entertain 50,000 visitors. Special trains will be run from all parts of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. Passenger men say they are figuring on the biggest one-day business in the history of the city. Marching clubs will be here from Columbus, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh and a number of other cities.

With the exception of a few finishing touches everything is in readiness for the exercises tomorrow. The program, in outline, is as follows:

7 a. m. Salute of cannon from the four hill tops of the city--Mt. Adams, Mt. Lookout, Fairview Heights and Price Hill.

8 a. m. Band playing in the parks, squares and at prominent street corners throughout the city.

10 a. m. Flag raising, with appropriate ceremonies of invocation, singing of patriotic songs, presentation, acceptance and benediction on the lawn of the residence of Charles P. Taft, brother of the presidential nominee, on Pike street.

11 a. m. Reception committee escorts the notification committee from Hotel Sinton to the Taft residence, where an informal reception will be held by the nominee.

12 m. On a temporary platform Judge Taft will hear the formal word that he is the republican party's choice for president. Senator Warner of Missouri, as chairman of the committee, will be the spokesman, and Judge Taft will make a speech of acceptance.

1 p. m. Marching clubs will pass in review. Procession expected to be from two to three miles in length.

1:30 p. m. Public reception by Judge Taft on the platform.

2:30 p. m. Reception and luncheon to the members of the notification committee by Charles P. Taft.

3:30 p. m. Automobile ride through the suburbs, the members of the reception and other notification day committees accompanying the members of the notification committee.

5 p. m. Release of 5,000 balloons in all parts of the city.

6 p. m. Dinner at the Country club to the members of the notification committee and other distinguished guests.

8 p. m. Fireworks display from barges on the river front and from the public landing. Judge Taft, the notification committee and the citizens' committee will board the steamers Island Queen and view the fireworks display from the decks.

BRYAN PROMISES TO SPEAK ON POLITICS

Greeted at Des Moines He Makes Five-Minute Speech and Promises to Return.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Des Moines, Ia., July 27.--When Bryan passed through the city today on a Rock Island train he was greeted by a large crowd and made a five-minute speech. Bryan promised he would come to Iowa at some future date to speak at length.

Back at Omaha, Omaha, July 27.--William J. Bryan arrived at Omaha at 1:10 o'clock. At the station he was met by a committee representing the Knights of Ak-Sar-Den, Secret Body of Omaha business men who will give him a banquet and later in the evening entertain him as a member. The day's journey carried him across the state of Iowa and he delivered addresses to large crowds at various points. At Des Moines he took the Denver platform as his text and declared it specifically set forth the reforms for which the people of Iowa had been contending. At Stewart he denounced the republican leaders in congress for failing to enact a remedial legislation which the president had recommended.

EXCURSION STEAMER HIT BY LIGHTNING

The Paul Jones at Edgerton Hit by Bolt Which Does Some Damage.

Edgerton, July 27.--The Paul Jones, the Iowa excursion launch owned by Leo Alder and George Richardson, was struck by lightning last evening. Only for the fact that Mr. Alder was near by it would have been a complete loss by the fire that followed.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

William Randolph Hearst is the acknowledged parent of the Independent party. It is through his efforts and through the medium of his papers that the organization has been perfected and should the Independent party develop into a national party William Randolph Hearst will be the man in years to come who will receive the credit for having founded this new movement, which is theoretically combined of the best in both the old-time parties and many new features.

Mr. Hearst could receive the nomination for president if he wished, but so far he has declined to consider this, preferring to have some man other than himself head the ticket.

UNCLE SAM MAKING THE SPECIAL RULES

Business Cards on Envelopes Are to Be Cut Out in the Future by the Government.

Janesville businessmen who have been buying stamped envelopes from Uncle Sam with their firm address on them will be interested in the recent order promulgated by the postal department and which provides that hereafter no advertisements shall be printed on the stamped envelopes supplied by the government.

The government ruling is made to comply with an act of congress approved June, 1906, and which has not been fully lived up to by all as yet. The act provides that no envelope shall be sold by the government containing lithographing or engraving, nor any printing nor advertisements except a printed request to return the letter to the sender in case of its non-delivery.

No advertisement or special device will be allowed of any kind, nor the names or addresses be printed by the government. The matter to be printed will be limited to a request to return after a given number of days, name of purchaser, or society, rural delivery route, box number or street address.

LARGE CROWD AT FIRST SESSION

OPENING DAY OF CHAUTAUQUA WAS WELL ATTENDED.

YOUNG MAN AND NEW WOMAN

Was the Subject of Address of Senator Burdett of Nebraska in the Afternoon.

"Large crowds of people attended the opening session of the fourth annual Janesville Chautauqua yesterday at St. John's church. The grounds have been considerably improved for this year's session. The driveway from the street has been lighted and more lights have been placed in the grounds. An information tent has been established and the Wisconsin telephone service. A number of families have rented tents on the grounds and expect to camp there until the chautauqua is over.

Morning Service
The first meeting was held at 10:30 yesterday morning when church service was held. R. G. Herbert gave a strong sermon taking for his subject "Christ and the Critics." He spoke both of the critics of Christ's own time and of the present day, and showed how easily they had been refuted. Carter's Carolinas furnished sacred music for the morning service.
At 2:30 after a prelude by the Carrolinas United States Senator Burdett of Nebraska spoke on "The Young Man and the New Woman." In his talk he dealt with the problems which confronted the young man of today in his relations with the new woman.
Senator Burdett's address was thoroughly appreciated by his audience and his stories called forth much laughter.

Last evening R. G. Herbert conducted the church service and gave a strong sermon.

Today's Program

branch every morning. Miss Woolley's work is in the nature of kindergarten work.

Mr. Herbert conducted the Bible study class this morning as Mr.
Wright had not yet arrived from Beloit where he has been doing chautauqua work.

In the afternoon after a half-hour prelude by Carter's Carolinas, Francis B. Wendling spoke on "The Unfinished Picture," which was followed by a short program by the Carolinas.

"This evening at eight o'clock The Honey's Boys Concert company will give a concert.

Tomorrow's program is as follows:
10:00 a. m. Child Work. Miss Woolley
10:30 a. m. Bible Study. E. M. Wright
2:00 p. m. Prelude. Carter. Carolinas

EXCURSION, PICNIC
& BASEBALL GAME

Patrick Garvin, Joe Harvey and E. D.
Connors Gave Forty Friends a Delightful Outing Yesterday.

About forty friends of E. D. Connors, Joe Harvey, and Patrick Garvin were their guests on an excursion and picnic up river yesterday. The steamer
"City Belle" Captain Buchholz, amply provisioned for the voyage, left at 10 a. m.
("Turtle Bend" is the picturesque camp owned by Walter Taylor,
"Wash" Burridge, Bert Van Hook, and others, and is located on the east bank about eight miles from the city.)
Alphonsa, the launch, occupied the seat of honor on the forward deck and skrummed accompaniments to all the songs of the steamer moved with the easiest grace which needs only a few more boating cliffs, a little doctored history and tradition, and an occasional Mouse Tower, to enter into serious competition with the Hudson and the far famed Rhine. Arrived at the scene of the day's festivities, the passengers disembarked to pass for a series of photographs and then, while "Col."
Reilly prepared the picnic dinner, followed friendly guides to an open field some distance from the camp which was to serve as a diamond for the day's baseball contest.

Harvey's "Waterwagons" were for the most part inexperienced, players while some of the best talent of the city lined up with Garvin's "Skyrap-ers." Victory for the latter seemed almost foretold and the score developed to a decisive and overwhelming defeat for the "Waterwagons" when they came to bat in the last part of the fifth and final inning. At a critical moment, with two men out and only one runner on base, E. D. Connors lined out a home-run, winning the game before the side could be retired. The final score was, Waterwagons, 13; Skyrapers, 12. The five-dollar bet for the first home run was won by Mike Madala. Following the serving of the sumptuous dinner, another five inning game was played with a new alignment and P. H. Gar-vin's side won 25 to 5.

"The return trip was made during the early evening and Alphonsa, the troubadour, played again for one of the swiftest and happiest crews that ever fared homeward from a delightful outing.

Brewing Teams
Sunday afternoon at Athletic Park
the Croak Brewing company team beat the Brook Brewing company by a score of 9 to 2. Carroll and Brummond were the battery for the Spring Brook brewers and Dee and McConnell for Croak's team.

TENDERED RECEPTION

Social Time Was Enjoyed on Saturday Evening by Members of United Brethren Church.

Saturday evening at the United Brethren church at the corner of Mil-lison and Prospect avenues a reception was given in honor of Bishop G. M.
Matthews, D. D., of Chicago, and to welcome the new members of the church. A large number of persons not members of the church and the congregation, in all about one hundred and sixty people, were present.
The program given was very fine, all of the members being received enthusiastically by the audience.

Rev. L. A. McIntyre gave a few words of welcome to those present and introduced the speaker of the evening, Bishop Matthews by telling of the manner in which he first met the Bishop in his home town. Bishop Matthews then took the platform and gave a short address well illustrated by anecdotes to bring out each important point. He first thanked the audience for attending the reception as it was given on a Saturday night when a great many people did their over Sunday shopping. He congratulated the people of Janesville for their fine streets and buildings which they have and particularly because of their fine churches. He then spoke of the opportunities of Nov. McIntyre in the church which he had through the church itself and through the Sunday school prayer meeting and the young people's societies.

After Bishop Matthews had spoken the musical and literary part of the program was carried out. All of the members were so popular with the audience that a record was made for each one.

Bishop Matthews spoke after the program had been given of the new movement class which he wished to organize in this city, a class for men which should be organized for two purposes, first, to study the Bible, and second,
to promote a feeling of good fellowship amongst the men of the church.
Refreshments were then served and a social time enjoyed by all after which all departed for their homes.

The program given was as follows:

CLASSY FIELD IS PROMISED GOLFERS

Janesville Entries in State Golf Tournamant Will Meet Fast Players.

Janesville golfers who go to Kenosha this week for the state tournament will find a classy field.
The leading golfers of the state are entered and the play starts on Thursday.
The links of the Kenosha club are in the finest shape and no sort of weather will change their condition.
Recently drained there is no danger of rains interfering with the links and the golfers are assured perfect conditions of the field for the state championship. The local committee in charge of the tournament is headed by John M. Kohler and the other members are Peter Fisher, president of the club, Charles W. Allen, vice president, and W. L. Yule, secretary of the Wisconsin State Golf association. This committee has done everything possible to make the tournament the best in the history of the association. In charge of the best tournament held on the Kenosha links and the golfers will remember the splendid manner in which he managed that tournament. Kohler will have in his aid at the starting green, Tom Hendallow, the famous western golf expert.

It has been planned to start the qualifying round at 8 o'clock on Thursday. Secretary Yule has already received many entries for the championship and other matches arranged and it is certain that the number of entries will pass the hundred mark.
For the first time every golf club in the state will have representatives at the tournament.

In honor of the visit of the golfers the pretty home of the club has been decorated throughout and hundreds of dollars have been spent in improving the links. A garage has been erected for the use of visiting golfers and the members of the Kenosha club have arranged to convert a portion of the clubhouse into a cafe.
Secretary Yule in speaking of the coming tournament last night said:
"The Kenosha tournament is an assured success from every standpoint.
I have sent letters to all of the leading golfers in the state and I am assured that the entry list will be at least 125 and it may be even greater.
The club in the state have taken hold of this tournament with a vim and the choicest field of golfers ever seen in Wisconsin will contest for the championship. In other years it has been deemed certain that there were less than a half dozen championship possibilities but the list of entries this year will include forty golfers who have state championship titles in them and the fight for the second cup at Kenosha will be as interesting as many championship events have been.

"There will be no less than forty Milwaukee players entered and Kenosha will have to make a strong fight to win the championship again. The Milwaukee men have been playing on the Kenosha links for two weeks and they are determined to take the championship to Milwaukee this year."

FINEST CAPITOL IN THE WHOLE COUNTRY

Expert Opinion Is That New Structure Will Surpass All Other State Capitols.

When the new Wisconsin state house is completed it will represent an expenditure of some $6,000,000 and will be the finest state capitol in the country. This is the declaration of architects, contractors and others who have had occasion to examine the plans of the structure and are also familiar with other monumental buildings of like character.

At present the building is growing on the east and west sides of the old capitol dome of the old building.
The west wing is practically finished exteriorly, lacking only some details of stone cutting and the completion of the terraces. On the inside much remains to be done. Floors and partitions are in and plastering is in progress.

The east wing is an interesting scene, with workmen putting up and riveting great pieces of steel and others putting in place the heavy blocks of white granite, which compose the external walls. Still other workmen are laying up the thick brick walls within the shell of granite and connecting with the steel frame construction. All rests upon a massive concrete foundation.

The capitol commission is working in advance of the actual performance of the work. Just now the commission is engaged in letting contracts for electrical fixtures and decorative features, among them the designs for sculptured pediments and pediments for the supreme court chamber and other portions of the building. The being made to get the new wing far enough advanced to allow the meeting thereof of the next legislature. The capitol will stand substantially upon the same ground on the square occupied by the old, ruined sandstone pile, which has served as a stanchion for half a century. But the new building will be about 23 feet to the west of the center of the present structure, this change being made so as to place the building perfectly central and symmetrical to the square.

After the completion of the east wing the next part of the old building to disappear will be the south extension, containing the governor's office, the department of state and the statistical bureau on the first floor and the tax commission, railroad commission, civil service commission, commissioner of banking, state superintendent of office, adjutant general's department, dairy and food commission and other smaller departments occupying the first floor. The next to be removed will be the building of the dome and finally the north wing, where the attorney general, board of control, insurance commission, supreme court and law and reference libraries are housed at present. This will hardly be accomplished before some eight years have passed.

State Tournament in Kenosha.

Six local golfers and members of the Mississippi golf club are entered in the state golf tournament which will be played at Kenosha on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. They are J. P. Baker, A. P.
Burnham, Al. Schuller, S. D. Tallman,
H. S. McGiffin, and Chester Morse.
A number of others may accompany those men to Kenosha, but so far no others have formally entered the tournament.

Play for the Wilson Lane cup has narrowed down to the semi-finals. J.
P. Baker is to play Mark Hotwick, and Chester Morse will meet J. G.
Roxford. Chester Morse defeated J.
E. Filford last week. Mark Hotwick put out Leo Brownell, and J. P. Baker won from Orion Sutherland. F. C.
Grant, who was to have played J. G.
Roxford, forfeited and Mr. Roxford then defeated Fred Schaller.

QUEEN PRESENTS OLYMPIC MEDALS

INTERNATIONAL GAMES AT LONDON ARE CONCLUDED.

AMERICA HEADS THE LIST

Bitter Animosity Engendered by Incidents of the Meet Indicate It Has Served No Good Purpose.

London, July 27.—The Olympic games were brought to a conclusion Saturday afternoon, so far as the sports held in the stadium were concerned, when Queen Alexandra presented the gold medals and trophies to the successful competitors, and the dowager duchess of Westminster, the duchess of Westminister, the duchess of Rutland and Lady Desborough handed the silver and bronze medals, the diploma and the commemorative medals to those entitled to them.

A big crowd attended the function and cheered the athletes as they came up to receive their prizes. The Italian Dorando was honored with the greatest ovation, the sympathies of the spectators going out to the man who had missed the prize of the Marathon race when it was just within his grasp.

Before the ceremony of prize-giving began America captured two events, the 110-meter hurdles and the 1,600-meter relay, the latter being the last event on the program. The Stars and Stripes was the last national flag to float at the stadium.

Standing of the Countries.

In all of the events concluded since the Olympic games began early in the year, including such games as water polo and other sports in which England alone competed, the present standing of the countries, counting wins only, is as follows: United Kingdom, 38; America, 22; Sweden, 7; France, 4; Hungary, 3; Norway, Germany, Canada, Italy, 2 each; Belgium, South Africa, Finland, 1 each.

In the field and track events, in which the points are counted five for first, three for second and one for third, the standing is: America, 114½; United Kingdom, 66½; Sweden, 12½; Canada, 11; South Africa and Greece, 8 each; Norway, 6; Germany, 4; Italy, 3; Hungary, 2½; France, 2½; Australia and Finland, 1 each.

America's score in the field and track events is made up of 15 firsts, ten seconds and eight thirds, in addition to a tie for second and third in the standing high jump, and a tie for the third place in the pole vault. The United Kingdom got eight firsts, six seconds and three thirds.

Games Kindled Animosity.

Thoughtful men in England have serious doubts, and these doubts are being expressed in some of the most influential newspapers, whether the Olympic games serve any good purpose, whereas theoretically they are supposed to foster international friendships. The result of the meeting just finished has been to create international dissensions and kindle animosity. The relations between the English and American athletic officials have become so strained that it will be exceedingly difficult for representatives of the two nations to arrange any competitions in the future or carry them out without unpleasant incidents.

All the American officials and athletes now here are convinced that the United States was robbed of the 400-meter race, while the English public, at any rate, is equally certain that the American runners had a prearranged plan to keep themselves out of first place in that event by fair means or foul.

Americans to Honor Dorando.

The American committee has decided to present a medal to Dorando, on which will be inscribed the flags of the United States and Italy, and a Marathon figure. It will be sent through the American ambassador at Rome, L. P. McGowan of Lancaster, Pa., one of the exhibitors at the international horse show, has headed the list of subscriptions with $125.

Mr. Stevens was shot as he was about to board a ferryboat in this city en route to Washington, Chang, the assassin, whose first shot had seriously wounded Mr. W. Chun, one of his associates who lay in wait for Mr. Stevens, was captured on the spot.

Fireman's Peculiar Death. Columbus, O., July 27.—Jumping from the cab of his engine on the Pennsylvania line to escape what he thought was certain death by a collision with an engine which seemed to him to be on the same track, but which was in reality on another track, Frank R. Morris, a fireman of Westerville, received injuries which resulted in his death a short time later.

MACKE TO MANAGE BRYAN CAMPAIGN

BUFFALO MAN PUT AT HEAD OF NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

WOODSON IS SECRETARY

Central Headquarters Will Be in Chicago—Funds May Be Deposited in Oklahoma's Insured Banks.

Chicago, July 27.—Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, N. Y., was chosen Saturday evening to be chairman of the Democratic national committee and manager of the Bryan campaign. Mr. Bryan and leading members of the national committee made the selection at a conference in the Auditorium Annex.

Other officers chosen at the conference are: Vice-chairman, E. L. Hall, Nebraska; secretary, Urey Woodson, Kentucky; treasurer, Charles N. Hawkey, Oklahoma; sergeant-at-arms, John I. Martin, Missouri.

Central headquarters for the campaign will be in Chicago with branch headquarters in New York. The offices here probably will be in the Sherman house, but that is not settled yet.

Bryan Is Pleased.

After everything had been arranged Mr. Bryan expressed his entire satisfaction with the organization of the national committee. He also said the selection of Mr. Mack meant that an earnest attempt would be made to carry New York for the Democratic ticket, intimating that an appeal would be made to the business interests of the country, and made a statement from which the natural inference was that the Democratic campaign funds, he they more or less, would be deposited in the state insured banks of Oklahoma.

For 25 years Mr. Mack has been the publisher of the Buffalo Times. In 1883 he succeeded former Gov. Sheehan as leader of the Democratic party in western New York. He was elected national committeeman in 1900, 1904, and 1908. Mr. Mack was born in Canada, at West Williams, Ont., in 1858, coming to the United States with his father when a boy.

Mack Wastes No Time.

"When are you going to start the campaign?" asked a reporter while Mr. Mack posed for the photographers. "Right away," was the reply. "Where will the headquarters be?" "Here in Chicago, with a substation at present in New York. We are considering the parlor floor of the Sherman house, but I cannot say positively whether the headquarters will be there or not."

Later in the evening he came to the door of the committee room on the seventh floor in the Annex and called out to the newspaper men:

"There won't be anything more doing in the way of news tonight beyond the fact that Henry Watterson has accepted the chairmanship of the press committee. It is the intention to wage a newspaper campaign and he will take charge of the work with the great Democratic metropolitan dailies. The other names will be given out some night next week from Buffalo."

Levee Breaks; Flood in Disastrous.

Antioch, Cal., July 27.—Early Sunday morning 200 feet of the San Joaquin river levee gave way and Jersey Island, comprising 1,000 acres, including 300 acres of celery, was flooded. The property loss is estimated at $5,000,000.

Countess Von Wartensleben's Pearl Recovered and Misdemeanor.

Berlin, July 27.—A pearl necklace of extraordinary beauty and valued at $50,000, which mysteriously disappeared from the apartment of Countess von Wartensleben one evening last February when she was attending the opera, has just been found. The countess' maid had been arrested in connection with the abstraction of the necklace, owing to the fact that a window in the maid's room was found open, but no evidence was secured against her and she was permitted to go free. The maid has been re-arrested.

Aeroplane Expert Arrives.

New York, July 27.—That the future of the aeroplane as a safe means of conveyance is practically assured was the confident declaration made by Henry Farman, the aeroplane inventor and navigator, who arrived here Sunday on board La Touraine from Europe for a series of flights in his new famous flying machine, at Brighton Beach, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

Two Young Women Drown.

Cleveland, O., July 27.—Rose Morgan, 23 years old, and Nellie Smith, 20 years old, were drowned Sunday night off the west breakwater. Miss Morgan lost her balance while the two were dabbled their feet in the water and, in falling, drew Miss Smith into the lake with her.

PEACE WITH PROTECTION

PRESIDENT HONORARY HEAD OF ARBITRATION BODY.

Accepts Position and Endorses Doctrine of Adequate Armament and Avoidance of War.

New York, July 27.—President Roosevelt has accepted the honorary presidency of the Peace and Arbitration league, which is the outgrowth of the North Carolina congress and which has as its objective adequate armament and effective arbitration.

President Roosevelt's letter accepting the honorary presidency was made public by Hayne Davis, former president of the league. It follows:

"My dear Mr. Davis: I am in receipt of your letter enclosing notice of my election as first honorary president of the Peace league, and gladly accept; for I most emphatically believe that the whole American people should subscribe to what you call your 'practical program for peace,' that is to the doctrine that we should provide adequate armament to protect us against all aggression, and at the same time strive for the effective arbitration of any and all disputes that may arise between us and foreign powers where it is possible to submit to arbitration."

"In other words, I cordially sympathize with your announced purpose to secure present protection for the nation, and at the same time make as rapid progress as possible toward permanent world peace. As you well say, we should have an unquestionably superior power in our own possessions and in the waters adjacent thereto in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans; and we should also do everything possible to secure agreements with all governments to respect each other's territory and sovereignty, and to arbitrate all other questions. Sincerely yours, Theodore Roosevelt."

Senator James H. McCreary of Kentucky is the active president of the league.

Commenting on the president's letter Senator McCreary said Sunday:

"The importance of the president's action in unqualifiedly associating himself with the peace league and with its program, is manifest. The full significance of his act, however, depends upon viewing it in the light of the fact that the Anglo-French form for arbitration treaties, which has been the most popular in Europe heretofore, reserves, among other things, all questions affecting the vital interests of the contracting powers."

"The president has now thrown his influence on the side of those Americans who demand that all governments expressly recognize and agree to respect the most vital rights of nations, that is, their territory and sovereignty, and at the same time provide for the arbitration of all other questions, upon this guarantee, as a safe foundation for international justice."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE NAMED.

Chairman Hitchcock Announces the Republican Campaign Chiefs.

Chicago, July 27.—Announcement was made Sunday night by Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican national committee, that the following gentlemen will constitute the executive committee:

Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware, William E. Borah of Idaho, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Charles Nagel of Missouri, Victor Rosewater of Nebraska, William L. Ward of New York, Edward C. Duncan of North Carolina, Holes Pentecost of Pennsylvania.

Veteran of Kentucky Bar Dies.

Owensboro, Ky., July 27.—William T. Owen, the mentor of the Owensboro bar, and former circuit court judge of the Sixth judicial district, died here Sunday from infirmities incidental to old age. He was born in Kentucky in 1823. Mr. Owen was an uncle of United States Senator R. L. Owen of Oklahoma.

Veteran of Two Wars Gone.

Cincinnati, July 27.—Gen. Joshua H. Bates, a veteran of the civil and Spanish Indian wars, died at the Burnet house in this city Sunday in his ninety-second year.

WORD OF WARNING

The Recorder has issued a word of warning of the common council, who are responsible for the present chief of police's misdeeds. The loss of Sam Brown, a patrolman, from the force because the council will not pay him the salary the city justly owes him has brought matters to a climax and the citizens generally are much aroused by it.

Backed by a city attorney whose opinion differs with the wind, and lacks stability, the council seem at meeting after meeting to continue its useless wrangle over police matters to satisfy the whims of a few members who seek for personal reasons to control the police department of the city.

This state of affairs has existed long enough. It is time to cry a halt to it and get down to business. The Recorder threatens to let loose the dogs of war on the council and intimates that they will not be muzzled either. Go ahead, brother Recorder; the "Gazette" is with you and behind the two papers are hundreds of influential businessmen who are tired of the situation. When Fire and Police Commissioner Geo. Simpson filed his bond with the city clerk and it was not accepted by the council for personal reasons, an insult was placed upon the men who signed the document as well as upon the community—men whose worth in money to the community is without question and whose standing in the business world is above reproach.

Recently the statement was made that the delay in bringing the suit of John Brown to court Chief of Police William Appleby rested with the attorney for the defense. This is a misrepresentation of facts. The delay has been caused by the prosecution who are fighting to gain time; to prolong the fight in the hopes of wearing out George Appleby's resources and compelling him to resign his position so their client can take the office.

It is a plain case of attempting to force their man into an office, to which there is a state law which says he has no right to, by starvation methods.

There is a majority of the council that hang together on this question. They are led around by their noses by one man whose power seems to be supreme. His word is law and his word goes when it comes to the question of voting.

"Oh, Lord! How long," as the Recorder says, is this going to last? How long will the citizens of Janesville stand for this kind of business?

THE WEIGHT OF HIS OWN COUNSEL

Several years ago when William Jennings Bryan was lecturing in the silver-producing state of Colorado, the manager of the Chautauque assembly of that state before which he lectured on "The Principle of Peace," ventured to put to test Mr. Bryan's faith in silver by paying him his lecture fee in four hundred silver dollars. When the pile of ducts was counted out and shoved across the table to Mr. Bryan, he looked up with a reproachful stare and said, "Young man, you are getting too smart all at once."

"The next best thing I can do, sir," replied the young man, "is to pay you in my personal check."

Whereupon Mr. Bryan loaded the twenty-three pounds and six ounces of silver into his valise and disappeared.

It is a wise man who knows the weight of his own counsel.

DEAR OLD JOURNAL

The Milwaukee Journal loves to remind its readers of its great interest in the welfare, politically, of its chosen apostle, H. A. Cooper, and to dig at the republicanism of the Gazette.

It is, of course, supported in its endeavors by the Heloit Daily News, which paper, under the guise of a republican mantle, is in reality a democratic organ run by a federal officeholder of a republican regime.

A wolf in sheep's clothing, it stalks about retelling untruths and befuddling its readers with its great cry of platy.

It does not excuse the vote of its favorite with the democrats or its alignment against the republican party in the recent session of congress beyond saying that he did not line up with Aldrich and others of the leading republicans of the country.

Following the lead of its mentor, the Milwaukee Journal, the Daily News of Heloit fills its editorial columns with political untruths in the hope of blinding the eyes of the people to the frailties of its chosen lord and master.

In supporting Theo. S. Nolan for the congressional nomination on the republican ticket the Gazette does so with a firm belief that if he is nominated and elected he will represent a republican district as it should be represented.

It is not fighting the battles of Speaker Cannon or of Senator Aldrich or others so frequently mentioned in the Daily News, but of the republican voters of the first congressional district.

Mr. Nolan is a man whose republicanism can not be doubted, whose allegiance to his party has never been questioned, whose ability as a lawyer is too well known to be doubted.

He stands before the voters of the district as a republican seeking the opportunity to represent a republican majority in the lower house of congress.

He does not have to resort to campaign lies that he may be called to Taft's cabinet and it would be a shame to defeat him for this reason. He does not have the aid of the federal officeholders of the district, the postmasters, who in direct violation of the department's ruling are fighting against him tooth and nail under the direction of their political sponsor.

He stands on his record and it is an open book. In supporting him the Gazette feels that it is supporting a man whose election would bring honor to the district and to his home county and city.

The Recorder says what is needed in a city attorney is a lawyer who reads law books and "not" Mother Goose stories and Pigeon's Progress. That is true, but perhaps in every one's life comes a period when these tales are appreciated and perhaps this stage has not been passed as yet.

In naming the son of the late county treasurer as his father's successor to fill out the unexpired term, the county board paid a neat tribute to the memory of the departed and did something that every lover of justice appreciated.

Janesville has gone baseball crazy again. Men who have not played the game for years are now enthusiasts and can rival their fellows in rooting and playing. It is a healthful exercise and can be classed with golf—only it is more strenuous.

Senator Stephenson's campaign for re-nomination is going along the same lines as others, yet he is criticized for his wealth as though a man by his own, honest endeavors could not acquire wealth and be honored for it.

When those dogs of war are unchained some of the present city officials whose activity has been noted of late will be sorry they began the fight.

Persons who really enjoy themselves on an outing must leave dull care behind and these hot days it is a good motto to follow. Work while you work and play while you play.

There seems to be a dearth of interest in the state ticket this summer. The Senatorial fight has overshadowed all others.

It takes a political campaign to develop the natural meanness of a man and to teach the unsophisticated the difference between the truth and a campaign lie.

That fight for the Sheriff's office promises to be both warm and bitter before the end comes and the vote is counted officially.

Rock county will soon be noted for its good roads as well as its many other features.

PRESS COMMENT.

At Quebec.
Milwaukee News: The celebration at Quebec of the 300th anniversary of the founding of that city by Champlain and his company of adventurous Frenchmen has aroused no little interest throughout the United States, the history of which is closely bound up with the history of Canada. It is of direct interest to Wisconsin, whose early history was made by the French missionaries and traders.

The first white man to step on Wisconsin soil was a Frenchman, who remained under the flag of France until the French power was overthrown in North America. Then Wisconsin passed to the British to become a part of the United States at the conclusion of the American revolution.

Today would have found a president instead of a prince inaugurating. But time works many changes and history yet is young.

"Ham" Lewis in Milwaukee.
Milwaukee Sentinel: In point of humor, the hit of the convention speech making last Wednesday was apparently made by the pink whiskered Democratic of Chicago, Col. J. Hamilton Lewis. What Hamilton John is to Cook county official posts, Col. Lewis is, we judge, to the Cook county speakers—fellow princes.

Pools of laughter greeted such hit-toning selections of humor and jokes of wit as "plumbum nigrum" (the Chicago convention); the "trust buster" (T. R.); the "delicate pleads of Indiana" (Beveridge); and so on.

But a decent respect for humanity compels the assumption that the following hit at the republican candidate for president fell comparatively flat:

"The secretary of war was suddenly called to the islands. He went despite the feeble begging of an aged mother, who lay in her bed, gasping her life away."

There is no need for Col. Lewis to reason his buffoonery with that piece of arrogant and indecent blackguardism. It might do for Cook county. It was too tame for Wisconsin.

Primary Law and the Senate.
Oshkosh Northwestern: District Attorney McGovern, of Milwaukee, now declares himself in favor of strict compliance with the spirit of the primary election law with respect to the selection of the next United States senator from this state. All of the other candidates have already made statements of similar effect, and some of them have even advertised a form of pledge to be signed by the candidates, thereby binding them to abide by the result of the primary choice and to cease their efforts for election in case they fail to get a plurality of the votes cast at the primaries.

This is evidently the purpose of the primary law, although there is no way to make its terms legally binding on the candidates. And there has been some talk of the possibility of the senatorial contest being carried before the legislature in case none of the candidates received an actual majority of all votes cast for the senatorial nomination, which of course could be done if any of the candidates for the nomination was so disposed. With the announcement of Mr. McGovern, however, that he will abide by the result of the primary choice, all of the candidates are now on record in this respect and the indications are the senatorial contest will end with the primary election.

A Fundamental Defect.
Evening Wisconsin: Another democratic convention in town? Another demonstration of the defectiveness of the primary election law, viewed from the standpoint of practical politics? The law cannot and does not prevent citizens from assembling if they choose, and agreeing what course they will take with reference to the policy to be pursued in any concern in which they happen to have a common interest. The Senate may hold a family reunion; the school teachers may meet and exchange views with reference to methods of education or pay of pedagogues or any other of the one thousand and one things that interest intelligent people; the democrats and the Social Democratic parties may and do agree among themselves who shall be the candidates of their parties to be nominated at the primary election.

Of course there is nothing whatever to prevent the republicans from doing the same thing. Perhaps the republicans will do the same thing some day. But while they refrain, the democratic and the Social Democratic parties possess a tremendous practical advantage.

That advantage consists in the power to go into the primary election free and untrammelled on the day of the primary election use their ingenuity to control the republican nominations. When that day arrives their own nominations are settled. They have nothing in the world to do but to make trouble for their opponents, and in that pastime they indulge to their hearts' content.

Tolstoi's Appeal to the World.
Milwaukee Press: On the eve of his 80th birthday there comes from the pen of Count Leo Tolstoi the most terrible arraignment ever launched against the Russian government. That act of the mighty reformer and distinguished man of letters has about it a sinister and melancholy significance. It is destined to stir the heart of the world and the nature and extent of its fruits cannot be forecast.

After a long lifetime of unremitting toil in the cause of humanity, and especially of his benighted country, there is torn from the very soul of him this force, despairing cry against conditions that have grown up under his very ministry. This is something more than sinister and melancholy. It is deeply tragic.

While the leaders in thought and art the world over are preparing for a proper recognition of the mighty Russian's birthday, such recognition as has never been accorded during life to any one worker in the realm of letters, that worn old man thinks nothing of that honor, but places his life in the balance by his withering accusation of his imperial rulers.

Not alone Zola's message, "Peace," electrified France to a recognition of the Dreyfus infamy, but the world heard such an appeal as this of Tolstoi, "I cannot be silent." It is aimed at the wanton and inhuman slaughter of the peasantry for the most trivial offenses, and embraces with that the hypocrisy of the state church and the curse of Russian militarism.

La Follette and His Place.
Oshkosh Northwestern: The Milwaukee Journal speaks of The Northwestern as "one of the papers which would drive La Follette out of public life." The Journal misjudged The Northwestern, unfortunately, of course. Senator La Follette has many admirable qualities, along with some points and characteristics of more or less serious objection. He has accomplished much good for the state of Wisconsin, and will doubtless accomplish more in the high office which he now holds. His chances for achieving such results, however, would be increased if he would cultivate a more amiable and less powerful side, it toward those who honestly differ with him in opinion, and who see, or think they see, occasional call for action. Respect for his judgment and confidence in his sincerity would also be increased if he would endeavor to maintain more harmonious and friendly relations with other men who are recognized as leaders of the party which he represents. Instead of gathering a following of underestimates and servile flatterers whom he constantly tries to reward by pushing them forward for public office, La Follette in his place is all right, but he should keep his place and not attempt to dictate to the people whom they shall select for the other offices of trust and responsibility.

This observation is especially applicable at the present time, when the people of the state are about to select an colleague and co-worker in the upper branch of congress, and while some are trying to make capital for this or that particular candidate by claiming La Follette is backing and supporting him. The chances are that if La Follette himself was a candidate for senator this year he would have no difficulty in securing a majority as first choice of the people of Wisconsin. That is the way the people feel toward him, with all his faults and shortcomings, and it was exemplified in the result of the delegate contests last spring.

Yet most of the people are wise enough to know that two La Follettes in the United States senate would be bad for the state and bad for each other. It has been hard enough for one La Follette to "save his face" and make any showing of progress.

DELAVAN HERE WITH THE RINGLING SHOW

Oldtime Circus Man Has Charge of Ringling's Horses—Has Many Friends in Janesville.

When Ringling Bros' circus arrives in town from Monroe "Dr." Delavan, the oldtime fair Robinson "boss host," will be greeted by his many oldtime Janesville friends. "Dr." Delavan is now the superintendent of stock for the Ringlings and what he does not know about horses is not worth knowing. Delavan always has a warm place in his heart for Janesville and has written friends he is coming, so he may see them.

One summer morning more than 2,200 years ago, on King Philip of Macedonia and his officers were in the field reviewing the cavalry a man walked up to the royal circle, leading a magnificent white steed which clamped its bit and paved the ground like a very Trojan.

"Is your horse for sale?" inquired the king.

Individuality.
Every human being is intended to have a character of his own to be what no other is, to do what no other can. —Channing.

Want Ads, bring results.

"Yes," answered the man eagerly; "but only a king can buy him."

"Sixteen talents (about $16,000,000), he is of Thessalian breed and fleet as a deer."

"This is a goodly steed," said the king musingly, "but you ask too much. However, we will make a trial of him and, if he suits us we will not quarrel about the price."

Love and admiration for a good horse is a dominant characteristic of the human race. Realizing this fact the management of the modern circus enterprise is lavish in the expenditure of money and freedom in exertion in the effort to secure attractive horses.

"Dr. Delavan, who has charge of the equine department of the Ringling Bros' show, has been educating and training horses for twenty-five years. He selects his horses with as much care as a society woman plans her ball gowns. The candidate must be handsome in color, as near perfect as possible in conformation, and possess an even temperament. His eyes must be large and devoid of the least trace of ill temper; he must hold his ears pointed slightly forward, and must have a handsome looking head, broad between the eyes.

Horses which lay back their ears at the approach of man, which are viciously at the passerby, and whose eyes evidence a mean disposition, are discarded. A trainer will not handle an animal of this character.

There is one field of endeavor in which the horse is an absolute essential. In the circus, at least, he is safe from the rivalry of electric motors; for no circus exhibition is complete without feats of equestrianism. The Ringling Bros' show has made a special feature this season of equestrian exhibitions. The famous Dutchman present a beautiful novelty in equestrian riding. "Recklessness," "Good night" horse takes off his clothes and goes to bed; then there is a horse ballet by twenty-four Arabian thoroughbreds, and high school acts on all three rings and on the hippodrome course. Daily Hodgkin does a sensational hurdle act, and Rose Wentworth and Emma Stickney maintain their long established records of being the most artistic principal equestrians in the country. John Agar will exhibit a menage horse with the most fascinating gait ever featured in any ring. Counting the ring and baggage stock, there are 500 horses with the Ringling Bros' "world's greatest shows."

This Time It Was Different.

"To tell the truth," Dr. Richards, said the wife of one of our most prosperous merchants, "I have neglected my teeth for years, since Dr. Richards told me so dreadfully that it hurt me to eat. I almost hysterically when at last he let me out of that chair."

"Well," said Dr. Richards, "how was it this time?"

"You never hurt me one bit," said she and the Dr. had just finished filling a lot of her teeth with gold.

It is very pleasant to Dr. Richards to receive these kind words from bright, intelligent people who know when they receive good service and appreciate them.

A. C. Hough and a cousin of Mr. Farnsworth, Joseph Farnsworth, went at once to Chicago on the morning train.

Mrs. Farnsworth was taken ill last Tuesday during the absence of her husband in Indianapolis on business and on his return Thursday it was deemed advisable to remove her to the Baptist hospital.

During Friday and Saturday she became much worse, being unconscious most of the time. Her father, Dr. Howard Baskett of Nashville, Tennessee, was summoned, but it was impossible to communicate with him owing to his absence from the city.

On Sunday Mrs. Farnsworth became rapidly worse, her trouble developing into apoplexy, and she passed away this morning at six o'clock. Delay in trains made it impossible for her father to reach her before the end came.

Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth were married in Chicago on June 30th, their wedding—originally set for July 1—being postponed by the fact that Mr. Farnsworth was wanted in Denver to handle the campaign of Charles Towne for vice-president.

Their honeymoon was spent in Denver and almost immediately on their return to Chicago Mr. Farnsworth was summoned to Lincoln, where Mr. Bryan placed in his hands the work of filing up the colored vote of the country. It was while on this mission his wife was taken ill.

Mrs. Farnsworth was formerly Mrs. Edith Baskett Mulholland. Her parents were Dr. and Mrs. Howard Baskett, residing in Nashville, Tenn. She was a striking beauty and those who have had the pleasure of meeting and knowing her found her a most charming lady.

Her sad death will be a bitter bereavement to her husband, whose many friends in Janesville extend their heartfelt sympathy. Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth were to have come to Janesville shortly for a visit and many social features had been planned for their visit. Their funeral services will be held in Chicago and the interment will be at her old home in Nashville.

INTERURBAN CUTS WEEDS WITH A PATENT MOWER

The mower which the Interurban company has been using to cut the weeds and grass along its right-of-way was working in Spring Brook this morning. The mower is pulled along the track by a work car from Rockford. The mower used is an ordinary mower with the regular wheels removed and car wheels put on in place of them. In and around the city they have to go rather slowly on account of streets and brush being in the way, but in the country where they do not have to watch out for such they can make eighteen miles an hour.

THIEVES IN THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

RANSACKED EVERY NOOK SOMETIME BEFORE DAYBREAK.

GOT TWO OR THREE DOLLARS

In Small Change But Couldn't Find the Bills—Suspect with Razors on Person Released Yesterday.
Sometime during the early morning every drawer and nearly every nook in the public library building was ransacked by a pair of determined burglars who located and pocketed two or three dollars in small change, which had been paid in as fines, but were unable to find the greenbacks which are kept in reserve for emergencies. Arriving on the scene shortly after five o'clock, Junior Dudley found a window on the north side of the structure, opposite the little frame blacksmith shop, open and a large pane of glass removed from one of the double doors which guard the stairway leading from the basement to the first floor. Three sawed drivers, including from his work-bench, were found above, having been used to pry open drawers which had not been disturbed in half a decade. Sets of filing cards and manuscripts from the desks had been unceremoniously dumped out and a thorough examination had been made of the contents of a small safe which had been left unlocked. In a hasty inspection of the premises one of the intruders had even gotten up on a chair and ran his fingers through the pendulum-box of the clock. The impression of his feet on the floor showed on the dust-covered chair bottom. The shoe prints of the other one were partially visible in a heap of sand under the window which opens into the coal-bin. This window has not been locked since it was opened from without by patient manipulation with a chisel. Officer Morrissey and later Chief Appleby were called to the scene and allowed to view the premises before any attempt was made to restore order there. That the thieves were familiar with the inside workings of the institution and had good reason to believe that a falsified roll of bills had been left there over Sunday, seems evident by reason of the persistent industry with which they searched. As a matter of fact, the money was in the building, but it had been secreted in a cabinet hole which, under any circumstances, could only have been located by the merest chance. One of the invading party left plenty of reminders of the fact that he was addicted to the disgusting habit of chewing tobacco. No permanent damage was done and nothing but the loose change taken.

Razor-Peddler Set Free
John Conboy, an individual who was picked up in an intoxicated condition by Officer Morrissey, Saturday evening, and who, by reason of a large quantity of new razors and jack-knives which were found under his coat, had been charged with carrying a dangerous weapon, was released yesterday by Chief Appleby. The prisoner declared that whereas he was an honest hardware peddler who had been driving a thriving trade with razors purchased at $9 a dozen and sold at $1.50 each, and other cutlery, he had been held for 10 days in the Washington jail on the same unwarrantable suspicion. This fact of his having been held in Washington was later established by a telephone colloquy with the sheriff in that locality and the latter admitted that he had been unable to secure any tangible evidence against the man. The grips, filled with cutlery, had been shipped by him to Minneapolis and one of the South Dakota cities and Conboy averred that he was on his way to Minneapolis when he made the mistake of not changing cars at Milton Junction, and landed here. He took the 8:15 westbound train last evening.

Punished for Drunkenness
Three prisoners pleaded guilty to charges of drunkenness in municipal court this morning. Jack Nolan was assessed a fine and costs amounting to $3.10 with the alternative of five days in jail; Charles Kingsley, $1.10 with the alternative of 7 days; and Jack O'Brien of Harvard, $1.10 with the alternative of 7 days. Some of the trio could settle up at the time but each hoped to make arrangements to have friends come to their relief.

REV. PARR PREACHED AT UNION SERVICE

Pastor of Edgerton, Congregational Church Spoke in Baptist Church Sunday Night.

On last Sunday evening the union service was held in the Baptist church and Rev. L. A. Parr, pastor of the Congregational church at Edgerton, delivered the sermon. His theme was that "theological advance had kept pace and even outstripped the advance in other lines and that our more extended scientific knowledge had not taken anything away from our old beliefs. It was a strong sermon and was listened to by a good sized audience in spite of the hot weather and the other attractions of the evening. Miss Nellie Bentley of Edgerton rendered a violin solo during the earlier part of the service, and played accompaniments for the choir.

Jane Cable

...By...
GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON,
 Author of "Beverly of Graustark," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY DODD, MEAD & COMPANY

"What mistake? What do you mean?"
 "It would have been a rich joke on Mr. Bansemer, seems that some lawyer is likely to be charged with blackmail, and they got Mr. Bansemer's name mixed up in it some way. Of course nothing came of it, but I just wonder if anybody had told him of the close call he'd had."

Droom started straight beyond the young bar and was silent for a full minute. Then he deliberately opened the book on his knee and began to turn the pages.

"That would have been a joke on Mr. Bansemer," he said indifferently.

"I don't think he would have enjoyed it, do you?"

"No one enjoys jokes from the United States marshal's office," said Droom grimly. "By the way, who is the lawyer that really was wanted?"

"I never heard. I believe it was dropped. The young fellow I knew said he couldn't talk about it, so I didn't ask. Say, who was that swell woman I saw coming out of your office this afternoon? I was up at Mr. Harbort's."

Droom hesitated a moment. He seemed to be carefully weighing everything he said.

"I suspect it was young Bansemer's future mother-in-law," he said. "Mrs. David Cable was there this afternoon about 3."

"Gee!" laughed Eddie. "Does she need a lawyer?"

"Mr. Bansemer transacted business for her some time ago. A very small matter, if I remember correctly. Here, listen to this. Now, here's a little incident I found this evening that interests me immensely. It proves to my mind one of two points I hold in regard to Marshall Ney. Listen. And he read at length from his book, a dry sepulchral monotony that grated on the ear until it became almost unendurable.

The little clock on the mantelpiece changed to before they had said Napoleon and began to talk about something that interested Eddie Deever far more than all else—Elias Droom himself and such of his experiences as he cared to relate. The old man told stories about the dark sides of New York life, tales of murder, thievery, rascality high and low, and he told them with bloodcurdling directness—the Walter who murdered, the inside facts of the Du Pugh divorce scandal, the Harvey family's skeleton—old food for the dime novel producer. Eddie reviled in these recitals even while he shuddered at the way in which the old man gave them.

"Ah, this is a wicked old world!" said Droom, rolling his pipe and showing his teeth as he puffed. "That's why I have those pictures of the Madonna on the wall—to keep me from forgetting that there are beautiful things in the world in spite of its ugliness and hypocrisy. I haven't much!"

He stopped short and listened intently. The sounds of footsteps on the stairs outside came to his ears. They clumped upward, paused for a moment down the little hall and then approached Droom's doorway. Host and guest looked at the clock instinctively. Eddie heard Droom's breath as it came faster between puffs at his pipe. Then there was a resounding rap at the panel of the door. Eddie Deever never forgot the look that swept over the old man's face—the look of wonder, dread, desperation. It passed in an instant, and he arose unsteadily, undecidedly, to admit the late caller. His long frame seemed to shake like a reed as he stood cautiously by the door and called out:

"Who's there?"

"Messenger," was the muffled response. Droom hesitated a moment, looking first at Eddie and then toward the window. Slowly he unlocked the door. A small A. D. T. boy stood by the door.

"What is it?" almost gasped Elias Droom, quickly drawing the boy into the room.

"Mr. Harbort? No answer, sir. Sten here." The boy, snow covered, drew a letter from his pocket and handed it to Droom.

"Where from?" demanded the old clerk, the paper rattling in his thin fingers.

"I don't know. I'm from Chicago avenue," said the boy, with proper politeness. He took one look at Droom's face as the man handed the slip back to him and then hurried downstairs, far less impudent at heart than he had been.

Droom recognized the handwriting on the envelope as James Bansemer's. It was the first time his employer had communicated with him in this manner. He tore open the envelope and anxiously read the brief message.

"I've got to go to the office," he said, surprise still lingering in his face.

"It's important business—a consultation with—or—with an important eastern client."

"Gee! It's tough to turn out this kind of a night. I'm going your way, Mr. Droom. Come on. I'll take the car down with you."

"I—I won't be ready for some time yet."

"Oh, well, I'll say good night then." Eddie Deever departed, chuckling to himself as he made his way to the U—building, determined to learn what he could of this unusual summons.

But Droom was too crafty. Bansemer's letter had asked him to come to the U—building, and not to the U—building. The command was imperative.

Bansemer had been spending the evening at the home of David Cable.

CHAPTER XII.

FOLLOWING close upon Mrs. Cable's visit to his office in the afternoon, Bansemer presented himself at her home in the evening, urbanely, courteously, but characteristically aggressive. His action in bearding him in his den was not surprising, even though it might have been considered unusual. He had been well aware for some time that she was sorely uneasy and that it was only a question of time when she would make the expected advances. Since the announcement of Jane's engagement Bansemer had been punctiliously considerate. And yet underneath his faultless exterior Mrs. Cable felt that she could recognize the deadly poison of other intentions. She lived in fear that they would spring upon her as if from the dark and that she would be powerless to combat them. Something stronger than words or even intuition told her that James Bansemer was not to be turned aside by sentiment.

Driven at last to the point where she felt that she must know his intentions, she boldly ventured into his consultation room, a trembling but determined creature whose flesh quivered with chill despite the furs that folled the wintry winds. Elias Droom passed her on into the private room, with a polite grin that set her teeth on edge.

She left the building fifteen minutes later, nursing a wild but forlorn hope that James Bansemer meant no evil after all. Without hesitation she told him plainly that she came to learn the precise nature of his attitude toward herself and the girl. Bansemer's resentment appeared too real to have been simulated. He was almost harsh in his response to the inference. In the end, however, he was a little less than tender in his efforts to convince her that she had been cruelly misjudged him. She went away with a chill in her heart dislodged, but not dissolved. When he asked if she and Mr. Cable would be at home that night for a game of cards she felt obliged to urge him to come. It was not until she was in the carriage below that she remembered that David Cable was to attend a banquet at the Auditorium that night and that Jane would be at the theater with friends.

Bansemer smiled serenely as he escorted her to the door. "We will not permit anything to happen which might bring misery to the two beings so dear to us," he assured her at parting.

Shortly after 8 he entered the Cable house. He had gone to Chicago avenue beforehand to send a telegram east. From the corner of Clark street he walked across town toward the lake, facing the bitter gale with poor grace. In Washington place he passed two men going from their cab into the Union club. He did not look at him, nor did he see that they turned and stared after him as he hurried his way across Dearborn avenue. One of the men was Bobby Rixby, the other Donald Harbert of New York.

"It's the same Bansemer," said Harbert as they entered the club. "I'd know him in a million."

At the Cable's a servant on opening the door announced that Mr. Cable was not at home.

"Is Mrs. Cable at home?" asked Mr. Bansemer, making no effort to find his cardcase.

"Yes, sir," responded the servant after a moment's hesitation. Bansemer passed through the vestibule.

"Say Mr. Bansemer, if you please," he removed his coat and was standing comfortably in front of the blazing logs in the library when she came down.

"I thought the night was too dreadful for any one to venture out unless—she was saying as she gave him her hand."

"A night indoors and alone is a thousandfold more dreadful than one outdoors in quest of good company," interrupted Bansemer. He drew up chairs in front of the fireplace and stood by waiting for her to be seated.

"I had forgotten that Mr. Cable was to attend a banquet at the Auditorium," she explained nervously, confident, however, that he felt she had not forgotten.

"To be sure," he said. "This is the night of the banquet, I was not invited."

"I tried to telephone to ask you to come tomorrow night. The storm has played havoc with the wires. It is impossible to get connection with any one."

A servant appeared in the doorway.

"You are wanted at the telephone, Mrs. Cable. Shall I say you will come?"

"Pushing to the roots of her hair, the mistress of the house excused herself and left the room. Bansemer leaned back in his chair and smiled. She returned a few minutes later with a fluttering apology.

"What a terrible night it must be for those poor firemen," she said. "I remember what it meant to be a railroad fireman in the west years ago. The blizzards out there are a great deal more severe than those we have here, Mr. Bansemer. Just think of the poor fellows who are repairing the lines tonight. Doesn't it seem heartless?"

"It does, indeed. And yet I dare say you've been scolding them bitterly all evening. One seldom thinks it worth while to be merciful when the telephone refuses to obey. It's only a true philanthropist who can forgive the telephone. However, I am grateful to the blizzard and happy. Fair weather would have deprived me of pleasure."

"I am sorry Mr. Cable is not at home," she said quickly.

"I doubt if I shall miss him greatly," said he.

"He expects to leave early. He isn't well," she hastened to say. "Don't you want to smoke?"

"A cigarette if you don't mind. By the way, where is my future daughter-in-law? Surely I may see her tonight."

"She is at the theater—with Fernmore. Graydon is one of the party. Didn't you know?" she asked suddenly.

"Do remember it now. He left the apartment quite early. Then I have Fernmore to thank for—we are alone!" He leaned forward in his chair and flicked the cigarette ashes into the fire, his black eyes looking into hers with unmistakable intention.

"You assured me today that you would be fair," she said, with strange calmness, meeting his gaze unflinchingly.

"I am fair. What more can you ask?" with a light laugh.

"Why did you say today that I had nothing to fear from you?" she demanded.

"You have nothing to fear. Why should you fear me? For twenty years your face has not been out of my memory. Why should I seek to hurt you, then? Why should I not rejoice in the life that binds our interests—our lives, for that matter? Come, I ask if I am not fair?"

Her face became pale, her heart cold. She understood. The mask was off. He yelled his threat in the simplest words possible. The purpose looked through with greedy disdain for grace.

"I can offer no more than I offered today," she said.

"Do you suppose I would accept money in payment for my son's peace of mind?" declared Bansemer, with finely assumed scorn. "You offered me $10,000. You will never know how that hurt me, coming from you. Money? What is money to me in an affair like this? I care more for one tender touch of your fingers than all the money in the world! You and you alone can mold every impulse in me. For half my life I have been hated. No one has given me a grain of love. I must have it. For years you have not been out of my mind—I have not been out of yours."

"Stop!" she cried angrily. "You have no right to say such things to me. You have been in my mind all these years, but, oh, how I have hated you!"

Like a flash his manner changed. He had her in his power, and it was not in his nature to permit his subjects to dictate to him. Craft and coercion always had been his ally. Craft could not win a woman's heart, but coercion might crush it into submission. It was not like James Bansemer to play a waiting game after it had been fairly started.

"Now listen to me," he said distinctly. "You cannot afford to talk like that. You cannot afford to make an enemy of me. I mean what I say."

"What would you do?" she cried. "You have promised that nothing shall happen to mar the lives of our children. You have given me your pledge. Is it worthless? Is it?"

"I wouldn't speak so loud if I were you," said he slowly. "The walls have ears. You have much to lose if ears other than those in the wall should hear what could be said. It would mean disaster. I know at least that you do not love David Cable."

"What! I—I worship my husband!" she cried, her eyes flashing, her bosom heaving. "I love him better than anything else in all the world. How dare you say that to me?"

"Control yourself," he cautioned calmly. "Permit me to say you love the position he has given you. You love the pedestal on which you stand so insecurely. You would rather bear his curse than to see the hand of social ostracism raised against you."

You cannot expect to get the best results from P. & G. Naphtha Soap if you do not use it in the right way.

When you buy a cake of P. & G. Naphtha Soap, please read the directions on the inside of the wrapper.

They tell you how to wash clothes in half the time and with half the effort it now takes. . . without boiling them . . . without rubbing the life out of them on a washboard . . . without standing for hours, over a tub of hot water.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is unlike ordinary laundry soap. It should not be used as ordinary soaps are. That is why we ask you to take the trouble to read the directions. They are very simple.

P. & G. Naphtha Soap is for sale in almost every grocery in this city.

The Price is 5 Cents a Cake.

Walt? A word from him and not only David Cable, but the whole world would turn against you."

"I have committed no crime," she flared back at him. "I have deceived my husband, but I have not dishonored him. Tell the world everything, if you will."

"It would be a luscious tale," he said, with an evil laugh. "The world, which is wicked, might forget the fact that Jane is not David's daughter, but David would not forget that she is yours."

"What do you mean?" starting from her chair. "She is not my child. You know who she is. You know the entire story. You?"

"I only know that you brought her to me and that I did you a service. Don't ask me to be brutal and say more." She sank back and glared at him like a helpless, wounded thing, the full force of his threat crashing in upon her.

"You—you couldn't do that," she whispered tremulously.

"I could, but I don't see why I should," he said, leaning closer to her shuddering figure.

"You know it isn't true," faintly.

"I only know that I am trying to save you from calamity."

"Oh, what a beast you are!" she cried, springing to her feet. "Go! I defy you! Do and say what you will! Only go!"

He rose calmly, a satisfied smile on his face.

"I shall of course first of all forbid my son to marry the young woman. It will be necessary for me to explain the reason to Mr. Cable. I am sorry to have distressed you. Truly I had expected quite a different evening after your invitation. You can't blame me for misunderstanding your motive in asking me to come here when you expected to be utterly alone." His laugh was a sneer.

"Poor poor little Jane!" murmured the harassed woman, clasping her hands over her eyes. "Then suddenly she cried out, 'What a devil you are to harter with your son's happiness!'"

THE NEW GEORGIA STATE CAPITAL, WHICH IS TO BECOME THE

PALADIUM OF MALE LIBERTIES.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Georgia state legislature proposes protection for men. If a bill introduced by George Glenn, representative from Whitfield county in the state legislature, and favorably considered by many members of the house, shall become law, matrimonial duplicity leading to criminal infidelity, will be legally tabooed. The measure provides that marriages shall become null and void when the man is proved to have committed adultery through the use of women of loose morals, pimps, prostitutes, etc., lace, dropstitch hose, peacock shirts, and other aids to beautification. The bill has been referred to the committee on ways and means for consideration and report.

EXCITING NIGHT IN OKLAHOMA.

Nine Million Acres of Land Thrown Open to Sale.

Muskogee, July 27.—At midnight the law removing the government restrictions on 9,000,000 acres of Indian lands in eastern Oklahoma went into effect. Every real estate office in that part of the new state was crowded with anxious buyers and sellers of land, money changed hands by the hundreds of thousands, agents were busy corralling the allottees that had been in practical captivity during the past few days, leases were taken on land that was not bought and actual cash was passed from hand to hand, making the night one of the most exciting in years in Oklahoma. Every one was striving to get the first chance at the property.

The removal means that 9,000,000 of the 20,000,000 acres of Indian land in 40 counties of eastern Oklahoma, which was formerly Indian Territory, becomes salable.

Lives Four Years with Broken Neck.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 27.—After having lived for four years in a paralyzed condition as the result of a broken neck, Leo McConnon, 19 years old, of Winona, died in St. Barnabas hospital, Minneapolis, Saturday evening, following an operation to effect a cure. The young man's case attracted unusual attention in the medical world.

GREEN BAY "UMP" IS ASSAULTED SUNDAY

Man Who Did Not Like His Decision Tries to Beat Him in Argument After Game.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Green Bay, Wis., July 27.—Joseph Antonen was arrested this morning for assaulting Umpire Chas. Hoffman after the Green Bay and Fond du Lac baseball game yesterday afternoon, while the umpire was in a street car alongside of a policeman who was protecting him. Antonen will be arraigned in municipal court on the charge and the Green Bay baseball association, who is responsible for the arrest, will prosecute him to the limit of the law.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

Copyright, 1908, by Edwin A. Nye.

WHISKY DID IT.

"I was drunk. God knows I didn't mean to harm a hair of my wife's head."

That was the confession of young M. E. Davis of Des Moines, Ia., in pleading guilty to the murder of his wife.

Young Davis was a bright, handsome, capable and popular druggist who, while crazy drunk, shot his wife and afterward seriously wounded the physician who was called to attend her. The wife died a few days after the shooting, leaving an infant son. Davis pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced to Fort Madison prison for eighteen years. "I was drunk."

That tells the story. M. E. Davis was an affable friend, an affectionate husband and father. M. E. Davis plus whisky was the senseless wretch who turned his gun against the one above all others whom he loved and cherished.

"I was drunk."
That was to excuse to plead before the bar of justice save in mitigation of the offense, else any man might go and get drunk and kill with impunity. "I didn't mean to harm a hair of my wife's head."

Of course he did not. It was not Davis, but whisky, that pointed the gun. But the law held Davis, not the whisky, responsible. When Davis was arrested whisky was not arrested; when he was tried before judge and jury whisky was not tried; when he was sent to prison whisky was let go not free.

Whisky is a coward. It assumes none of the responsibility which it creates. It gets men into trouble and leaves them there. It can make difficulties, but it cannot solve problems. It can put men's brains in a tangle, but it cannot make their paths straight. It is not only a coward; it is a liar and a thief besides.

"I was drunk."

That confession constitutes an indictment of strong drink. Whisky palates the calloused hand of toll. It frightens the roses from the cheeks of loving wives. It throws shadows over the hearts of innocent children. It sears conscience, ruins judgment and kills innocence. It turns the heart of a man against his best friend. It is not only a coward, a thief and a liar; it is a murderer.

"I was drunk."
That confession of young Davis is an epitome of all the tragedies of all the might-have-beens.

Obscure Art.

"I'm afraid that you don't appreciate that composition," remarked the musician.

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox; "in all frankness, I must say I don't. It keeps me guessing."

"Yes, I always have three guesses—why anybody wrote it in the first place, why anybody plays it in the second place, and why anybody listens to it in the third."

Amantiss of the Fair Sex.
Mrs. A.—I thought that Mrs. C. was a friend of yours?
Mrs. B.—And so she is.
Mrs. A.—Well, she isn't. She's a hypocrite.

Mrs. B.—How do you know that?
Mrs. A.—Because she tried to get me to say something mean about you.
Mrs. B.—She did? How?
Mrs. A.—Why, she asked me to tell her what I really thought of you.

Flattery.

"That supercilious editorial of yours this morning," said the editor, "was a palpable imitation of Macaulay."
"Ah!" replied the editor, "you are in a mood for flattery."

"I did not intend to flatter you," rejoined the editor feily.

"No? Oh, dear, no. I was thinking of Macaulay."

Had Been Busy.

A man who served as a hackman in Hempstead, Long Island, for over 50 years died. Some days previous, he had not doing in front of the railroad depot, a commuter said to him: "You must have seen some queer things, Luke, in your half century of going to and fro?" "Dunno as I have," was the slow answer. "Just hacked."

The "Simple" Life.

A man who tried to pay his old debts was promptly charged with insanity. It seems a pity that in some localities common honesty is looked upon as a mental aberration.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SENATOR WILLIAM WARNER OF MISSOURI, WHO MADE THE FORMAL NOTIFICATION SPEECH TO DAY TO WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Mr. Warner received this honor through the wish of Senator Lodge, who, according to custom, would have had this honor owing to his office in the convention. Senator Lodge was unable to attend the meeting and yielded his place to Senator Warner. Senator Warner represents the state of Missouri in the upper house of congress. He is a republican of long standing and a dominant factor in Missouri state politics. Mr. Warner was born in Lafayette county, Wis., June 11, 1816. He served in the war of the rebellion and was advanced from the ranks to the office of major in the Forty-fourth Wisconsin. In 1888 he was made commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Since the close of the war he has been engaged in the practice of law in Kansas City. He has held many offices of trust at the hands of the people, first as city attorney, in Kansas City, and then as surgeon attorney. In 1868, he was elected to congress, where he served two terms. In 1892 he was republican candidate for governor. Mr. Warner has been a delegate to six national conventions and was chairman of his own state convention in 1881. He was never graduated from a college or university but received the degree of LL. D. in the University of Michigan in 1905. He succeeded Francis Marion Cockrell to the United States senate three years ago.

Lighens Life's Labor.
A French wit defined manners when he said: "I would rather be trampled on by a velvet slipper than a wooden shoe"—though it must not be forgotten that the velvet slipper tramples not at all. Polite manners trip through life like the velvet slipper, making beauty, injuring no one.

First "Dress Suit" in Kansas.
The first dress suit that ever came to Kansas came with the "old" from Boston during the dry summer of 1860. Some rich man in the east contributed it, having outgrown it, and a farmer named Paswell, in Kaplona township, in this county, plowed corn in it all summer.—Atchison Globe.

Seven Good Reasons Why You Should Purchase a Newman Bros. Piano

- 1st. Because it is constructed on right principles for pure tone and durability.
- 2nd. Because it has an even scale and clearness in tone seldom found in highest notes.
- 3rd. Because it takes its tone from wood instead of iron, doing away with metallic tone.
- 4th. Because all material used in its construction are the best that money can buy.
- 5th. Because it is built to last a lifetime and stand in time equal to any.
- 6th. Because it is the best piano on earth to buy for the money.
- 7th. Because when you have bought one you are satisfied with its rich, round, pure tone.

Call and see these famous pianos at 4 and 5 Carpenter Block, upstairs, over Archie Reid's Store.

The Newman Piano will be used during the Chautauqua.

Some Bad Advice

Advice, they say, is like medicine—easy enough to give, but hard to take. We are going to give you some which you may take or not, just as suits. In case you don't, your gain will be our loss, and we will be the only ones sorry for it. By following this advice, your neighbor (who doesn't) will secure goods at lower prices than their fondest dreams ever presaged; you will get left. Here's the medicine:

Don't Take Any Notice of These

12 1-2c Wash Goods

The most remarkable bargains we have ever offered. Bought under the most favorable circumstances, owing to unusual market conditions, at figures that mean a tremendous loss to the manufacturers, we are giving our customers a great benefit by offering beautiful wash cotton goods, in a large variety of styles and colors, which have been bringing this season 25c to 35c, at12 1/2c that are greatly reduced, the real values of which are apparent to any woman, formerly 15c to 85c, are on the counters at39c, 18c, 10c

Motor Cloth Suits

New shipment just in, suitable for now or fall wear, taking well, stands the wear. Motor cloth comes in herring bone stripe effects, colors tan, brown, Alice blue, gray, 28 in. 15c; 34 in. 20c.

Waists Reduced

We've made no reservations—every waist in stock bears a clearance price. Are you going to benefit by the reductions?

Better come at the very earliest possible moment and get your share of these out-of-the-ordinary values.

Many are the popular "Standard" waists—none better.
